Message from National President Johnny Kwan

Now we are half way through 2014, I believe all our members have clear understanding of the Active Citizen Framework and are working hard to train themselves through serving the community by using this Framework.

Many projects were held successfully and more good projects are coming. Thanks to every member's hard work, we won many awards in ASPAC, which assured JCIHK's contribution to the society.

Being the National President, I have the whole picture of what JCIHK is doing and realize that JCIHK has been contributing a lot to the community. We have many different projects every year, which our members not only know more about the community, but also can equip themselves well so as to excel in other aspects in their lives.

Two of our signature projects "Active Citizen Forum" and "Nothing But Coffee" were held in May.

During the "Active Citizen Forum", ten speakers and two moderators were invited to express their views on two major topics, "Education Effects on Youth Competitiveness" and "Intrinsic and Extrinsic Factors of Youth Competitiveness". There were approximately seven hundreds attendants ranging from secondary school students, general public, youth organizations, local chapters, families and friends participating in this event.

To fight against malaria in Africa, "Nothing But Coffee" fundraising campaign was launched. We are proud to have this opportunity to partner with Pacific Coffee Company, sponsoring two thousands coffee vouchers to JCIHK for charity sale, which includes a cup of heartwarming freshly brewed coffee and a mosquito net donated to Nothing But Nets.

Another hot topic in the society nowadays is that should young adults start up their own businesses?

There are various funds, including some seed funding and BUD, which provide numerous support to creative business ideas. HKTDC also promotes how the Government supports the growth of new businesses in Hong Kong.

I believe our members can utilize these channels together with the skills, knowledge and connections they gain from participating in JCIHK, they will be able to start up a successful business and open a new page of their lives.

Unite to Impact. Let's Shine.

“FINDING & FILLING THE LOOPHOLES IN THE SOCIETY.” THE REAL MODEL OF ACTIVE CITIZENS – MARK MAK

Starting a non-profit veterinary clinic from scratch

Mak Chi-ho, Mark is someone who prefers writing to speaking. On the Non-Profit-Making Veterinary Service Society (NPV) Blog you can find many of his entries, most of which are, unsurprisingly perhaps, related to animals and his work, but not so much about his story before NPV. An educated guess would be that he has veterinarian background, but his story will surprise us:

“The first half of my life had nothing to do with what I’m doing now. I was a screenwriter turned advertising guy. Then I went to Australia to study physical education, and became a professional coach after returning to Hong Kong. You see, with such a background, when I told my friends I was going to start a non-profit veterinarian clinic, they weren’t too optimistic about it.”

Why did he want to set up NPV in the first place?

“Where I used to live there were many stray animals. I tried to invite neighbors to help those animals, like taking the animals to the vet and getting them vaccinated. But people were oblivious about the condition of the animals. This made me more aware of animal rights, and I’m not only talking about domestic animals and pets, but also wild animals like buffalos and boars, and I began to work with government departments and related organizations to protect animal rights.

“Animals cannot speak. They cannot fight for their own rights, and when they are sick they don’t know how to seek help. Animals are part of our community. Some of them even help us in our daily life. It’s cruel for us to abandon them when they are sick or dying. I found out one of the reasons for people to choose to abandon their pets instead of going to the vet is the high prices most veterinary clinics charge. And so I was determined to set up a non-profit animal clinic to help stray animals and pet owners who cannot afford to live with us in our community. As “leaders” of the animal kingdom, humans have the responsibility to improve the living environment of other animals.

Mark’s experience tells us that a clear direction and sense of mission is of utmost importance to the success of a non-profit organization. What wise words will he give to young people who want to dedicate themselves to social good and non-profit work?

“Think clearly, have a clear message and business model so that other people know what you are doing and what your organization is about and therefore are willing to give you support. There are loopholes in the society we live in. Finding them and filling them can be tough, so you need to make sure you can go through with the process.”

Mark’s experience tells us that a clear direction and sense of mission is of utmost importance to the success of a non-profit organization.

profit-making veterinary clinics. Our voluntary helpers also take back stray animals in need for professional care. We are lucky to have the support of donors and the help of volunteers. What I always say is one day when we don’t get donations anymore, NPV will close down because that means people no longer agree with our mission.”

Mark often visits schools to spread the message about NPV. He finds it crucial to let children and young people know the importance of respecting animals. He emphasizes that we do not necessarily have to adopt all stray animals. Rather, it’s more important for us to understand that animals, like us, have the rights

CHANGE MAKER FORUM 2014 – PASSION IN ACTION

Over 400 participants had joined the signature flagship project of JCIHK "Change Maker Forum" on 17 June 2014, which was jointly hosted by JCI Victoria and JCI Bauhinia.

The key of the JCI Mission is "to empower young people to create positive change".

The forum aims at motivating young people to foresee and to make essential changes for the betterment of themselves and the society, and become the leaders to influence others to create positive changes.

The three sharing guest speakers are as follows:

Founder of Green Monday and Social

Ventures Hong Kong - Mr. Francis Ngai (魏華星)

CEO of AsiaWorld-Expo - Mr. Allen Ha (哈永安)

CEO and Founder of Memorigin - Mr. William Shum (沈慧林)

The speakers had shared some personal experience for their achievements and their visions to motivate young people to create changes.

Francis: Sometimes you do not need to think too big in making changes, you may alter a bit your habit, e.g. trying "Green Monday" to go meatless one day every week. You will find yourselves healthier, and you can also reduce carbon footprint to the environment.

Allen: If you just focus on yourself, the impact of making changes is small. If you just compromise, no constructive improvement will be made. However, if you consider the bigger environment and "collaborate" with the stakeholders, the result will be "win-win".

William: Making changes depends on "Action". If you try and overcome whatever the challenges, you will succeed.

Many participants are inspired by the forum and put their Passion in Action to join JCIHK, so as to achieve self-accomplishment, as well as develop a better Hong Kong and a better world.

INTEGRITY AND COMPLIANCE WITH LOCAL LAWS IN CROSS-BOUNDARY OPERATIONS

ICAC
Article

Further reform and opening up of China's economy have facilitated cross-border trade and exchanges between the Mainland and Hong Kong, while globalization has also created enormous opportunities for Hong Kong small and medium enterprises (SMEs) in overseas markets. To maintain a level playing business environment, the world has placed greater importance on anti-graft work. For instance, the Chinese Government has recently taken stern measures against corruption and commercial bribery and some countries have enforced more stringent anti-corruption legislations like the UK Bribery Act 2010. Apart from observing the anti-corruption law of Hong Kong, Hong Kong SMEs engaging in cross-boundary business have to remind their staff to abide by local laws while working in other jurisdictions to avoid inadvertent breach. When involved in a bribery, not only business reputation will be tarnished, company directors and enterprises may also be held legally liable.

Corruption prevention recommendations for cross-boundary business operations:

- Understand and observe the laws of difference places, and, say NO to corruption
- Formulate a code of conduct, establish policy on the acceptance of advantages and regulate the provision of entertainment and hospitality
- Conduct risk assessment for organisations; regularly review and strengthen system control
- Cultivate an ethical culture and arrange integrity training for staff

MEMORIGIN Memory & Original

William Shum, a post 80s generation, launched a tourbillon watch brand in Hong Kong, called Memorigin. When he came back to Hong Kong after finishing the Master degree and got a stable job, he also had a dream of launching his own business. Initially, his family opposed to this action, he was worth to try although he might fail.

Frequently receiving sponsorship invitations from different charitable activities, William is always generous in supporting. "To my point of view, as a company based in Hong Kong, I should try my best to contribute to society and enhance positive energy in the city", William said in a humble manner.

William also accepts the invitations to be the guest speaker for sizable conferences, tertiary education organizations and chambers of commerce to share his experience of starting up a business with potential entrepreneurs and students. "Comparing to working class, I'd prefer to have discussion with students. They are straightforward and creative, which always inspire me to rethink my brand and design", William expressed. Feeling that the youth is in lack of confidence, William has a mission to explore new local young designers in watch industry.

William highlighted that it was important for Hong Kong to develop creative industry. He thought that Hong Kong had a great advantage of being a cultural hub where east meets west. Besides, local people are quick-witted and can always think out of the box. Using his company as an example, the tourbillon is designed with both eastern and western concepts. Influenced by his father, who is an antique collector, William believed that this unique culture has to be passed on. He would also collaborate with foreign film-makers to explore new markets and promote Hong Kong's culture.

William explained history was composed of time, every moment is precious and should be memorized and every minute should be fully utilized. Though with intensive schedule every day, William does not employ an assistant, but he'd rather rely on himself to mark down all meeting and events in the Google calendar and do the right things at the right moment.

For more information: <http://www.memorigin.com>

William's father (沈墨寧先生) is a wood engraving antiques collector. In his office, there are thousands of collections.

William uses Google calendar to mark down all events and never waste any minute.

5月24日「小企業大長征2014 —— 尋找快樂的故事」開幕禮，正式宣佈一連串以學生「尋找快樂來源」為主題的活動正式快樂起航！

有調查報告指出，雖然整體學生快樂指數略為上升，但隨著年齡及年級愈高，快樂指數趨低。同時學生抗逆能力偏低，也影響學生的精神健康。有見及此，由浩洋青年商會的旗艦工作計劃「小企業大長征」，以「尋找快樂的故事」為主題舉辦一連串活動，包括替學生尋找快樂來源為主題，對象為中學生的亞洲青少年交流團、微電影創作比賽以及亞洲青年100快樂指數問卷調查新聞發佈會，期望令中學生及家長明白到精神及心境上富庶才是快樂的根源，從而令他們學懂珍惜及感恩。有關詳情，請參考活動官方網頁或Facebook Page。請大家多多支持。

"Cherish Food, Cherish Life" is the slogan of Love of the Earth 2014. It's the second year of JCI Sha Tin to uphold mission for spreading food-saving message to the public. This year, we are moving a step forward from promotion to real application. We developed a mobile app to consolidate food bank resources and information so as to provide sustainable solutions through the use of the latest information technology.

Furthermore, applying Active Citizen Framework (ACF), we conducted a survey (<http://goo.gl/Y5b92Z>) to explore how daily eating habits impact upon the amount of food waste. Interviewing the Executive Director of LHGroup Mr Simon Wong on the feasibility of the app before launching fulfils the information gathering stage of ACF.

【第十屆中華兒女系列】之「環保·還寶」 全港中學生升級再造環保設計比賽

為積極回應政府對固體廢物處理問題的公眾諮詢，本會的社會發展工作計劃「環保·還寶」全港中學生升級再造環保設計比賽正火速進行中，旨在提高學生的環保意識，帶出「廢物還是寶」的信息。

在二月份，「環保·還寶」先於灣仔「夫子廟會」嘉年華活動上，以「環保升級利是封」攤位作為強勢頭炮，既宣傳是項全港性設計比賽，也教導市民利用舊利是封製造漂亮的手工藝品，向公眾大力宣揚將廢物升級再造的訊息，反應非常熱烈！
